FROM TUXEDOS TO PAJAMAS
The SMLS Live Auction Moves Online
March 1-24

We are proud to announce a cutting edge new fundraiser - “From Tuxedos to Pajamas” - the first SMLS online auction! The idea of an online auction came to us after the SMLS “Night of Blues” auction dinner/dance venue fell through last November. Benefit organizers scrambled to find a suitable alternative, but the threat of a harsh New England winter and the impact it might have on a night of live bidding had everyone worried. The appeal of an online auction became clear: participants could peruse auction items from the comfort of their own homes. An online auction would enable members to support the SMLS mission and would increase visibility in the more affluent suburbs where SMLS has had difficulty attracting supporters. The Campaign Committee’s decision was unanimous: ditch the tuxedo and pull out the pajamas.

Look out your window right now. Is it dark, wet or cold? Picture yourself under impossibly blue African skies on a safari for two that you won at the SMLS on-line auction. Or maybe you found the perfect Mother’s Day gift - a spa package donated by Illusions Hair Design & Tranquilities - now instead of scrambling come May. Perhaps you’ll bid on the one hour relaxation massage or you may prefer the week at Sugarbush. Feel the need for speed? How about a test drive in a Lotus or Ferrari? To make a wedding anniversary or a marriage proposal truly memorable, why not bid on the helicopter ride around Boston? Thanks to the generosity of our donors, these are just a few of the great items we have to sell for a great cause.

If you have items to donate, please visit www.smls.cmarket.com or call Liz Parra at 508-620-1830. We particularly need unique “experiences” that you might be able to arrange, such as a week in your vacation home on the Vineyard or a tour of Fenway Park and a chance to meet Curt Schilling. We will send you a reminder email to start bidding in early March. If we don’t have your email address, send it to smls@cmarket.biz or register online by visiting our website www.smlegal.org.

We still need to raise $25,000 toward our $100,000 goal; our upcoming on-line auction is a fun way for you to support SMLS’ work! Log on, shop and support SMLS from home and from your desk!

Please join SMLS and our title sponsor, the Peter Condakes Company, in helping to make the first SMLS online auction a success!

A Message From the Director

A new year signals a fresh start, and with it the prospect of hope. Every day, low-income clients come to us seeking help from life’s injustices. Often they have their faith restored by being able to access the legal system. Last year alone, SMLS helped over 2,300 people navigate through the system. Many achieved favorable outcomes as a result. We are fortunate to count among our supporters a loyal group of donors, whose financial support makes it possible to fund new programs, and a group of dedicated pro bono attorneys who help ease our staff’s caseload. Thanks to their generosity, victims of domestic violence are protected from abuse, bankruptcy clients obtain relief from harassing phone calls, elders are shielded from physical and financial exploitation, and all are treated with dignity and respect as they seek to begin anew.

Aurea Ortiz and her son Miguel needed a fresh start. After escaping a violent home, they had moved first to a battered women's shelter, then to a homeless shelter in Framingham.

Miguel hoped to move to a warmer climate, and Aurea thought getting far away would be a good idea. She began an intensive search for an affordable apartment, even applying for housing in Florida. Shelter residents are required to search for housing, but Aurea needed no prodding. She was more than ready to move on.

Aurea and Miguel were excited when word came from Florida Public Housing that an apartment would soon be available for them. Aurea told the shelter staff that she was going to Florida to see her new apartment and fill out the final paperwork. A relative agreed to care for Miguel for several days. “[The staff] all said ‘congratulations’ to me when I found the place,” said Aurea.

“I needed a lawyer. I called [SMLS], and [Scott] said ‘stay right there!’”

A week later Aurea was back in Massachusetts with a new lease in hand. She and Miguel would be able to move into the apartment in a couple of weeks, and Aurea planned to spend the time packing and preparing for the move. But she was in for a nasty surprise. A shelter worker informed Aurea that she had failed to fill out the necessary forms explaining her absence. As a result, she was considered to have abandoned shelter. A decision had been made to throw her out effective the next day, pending an appeal.

Aurea was distraught. “I was told we would have to sleep on the street,” she says. “I didn’t understand ... what had happened. I didn’t know I had to fill something out, no one ever told me.”

Aurea called South Middlesex Legal Services and was put in touch with attorney Scott Bernard. “I needed a lawyer,” she says. “I called [SMLS] and [Scott] said ‘stay right there!’”

Attorney Bernard moved quickly to obtain a one week delay in the appeal date. He then collected evidence from shelter workers and a housing search specialist, all of whom admitted that they were aware that Aurea was going to Florida to sign a new lease. After listening to the evidence, a hearing officer ruled in Aurea’s favor. She and Miguel could take the time they needed to move.
